OHIO.

Among the States which the Whiggery has pu down for Harrison, is that of Ohio. This is the tip-top absurdity of "counting without the host." The Stark County Democrat has the following:

MILITARY CHIEFTAINS.

The great horror manifested by the Federal glish and Portuguese residents. These last, after Whigs for "military chieftains," on the nomination an ineffectual resistance, had been expelled by the of Gen. Jackson for the Presidency, is still fresh in Chinese, who lost in the affair about twenty men. the recollection of our readers. Their patriotism was alarmed at the precedent his election would with the Americans, who were actively engaged in afford, as well as at the incident itself. "The days turning these events to their own account, for the journed until Monday next. of the Republic are surely numbered," said the Whiggery, "if a military chieftain be permitted to assume the duties of the civil magistrate." But the French Minister of War: now it is "Hurra for the Hero of Tippecanoe!"-Now we are called upon to support Harrison, hecause he "fights well!" We believe the Federalists think the people are fools.

But Mr. Clay himself is in favor of the election one cannon, a great number of small arms and drums of Harrison; Mr. Clay, who took the lead against Jackson on account of his being a "military chieftain." The Hon. F. Brooke. TRUTH FROM MR. BIDDLE.

All the Federal outery about the wickedness of the Administration, in desiring to place the public money beyond the reach of speculators, is blown to the Moon by their friend BIDDLE. At a meeting of citizens in the interior of Pennsylvania, Mr. B. gave into the expediency of prohibiting colored people the following statement:

"We have bought far too much from foreign nations, and have indulged, with a childish excess, in all the luxurious follies of the old world. Look only where this has led us. During the last ten years, we have imported about one hundred and eighteen millions of dollars of silks, and more than forty-one millions of dollars of wines and spiritous liquors, making an aggregate of more than one hundred and fifty millions of dollars, for articles of the merest luxury. Here there are:
